Dr. Pitts

pulled into a used car lot to sleep, knowing I would blend in with the rest of the dilapidated cars.

Oh, I've had my fun all right on these trips. Bear attacks, sleeping in a grass hut on a Florida beach, not sleeping at all, being caught in a flash flood, sleeping in a snow bank. Just think, I never planned any of those things.

I guess some of us have to have a sense of adventure to even think of leaving home without a day by day itinerary. But those are the things I need to get away from.

My little assignment book is cramped full of times to be, places to see and people to meet and I have to do and be at all of those places at certain time.

So who needs to stop for gas at 4 p.m., lunch at the place with the orange doors, sleep at that campsite or do anything else you don't have to do.

Gosh, I can hardly wait to get out of here. I just hope I make it back in time for my 2:30 home of Judy and LaVon Milliner Tuesday April 10, where they were entertained by Renee Carlile and Judy Milliner as they presented "Great Men of American Popular Songs."

This was written by David Ewen, who is one of the most widely published authors and successful writers on music in the world. His books are translated into 17 languages.

The book contains information from the Pilgrims to the present time. Included in the review were songs of the Negro, songs from the Operetta, songs with syncapation songs of the twenties and thirties, song from musical plays and songs from the movies.

From Stephen Foster, Judy sang a medley which included "Beautiful Dreamer." From Vecton Hebert she sang "There Alone." From Erving Berlin she sang "When I lost you," "A pretty girl is like a medley," and "Always." From Cale Porter she sang

From Rodger Hammerstein, "O What a Beautiful Morning," "If I loved you," "It might as well be Spring," "Bali Ha'i," "Sound Of Music." From the movies, "Some Where My Love."

A lovely lunch was served to 17 members — seven were exceeded.
